FITZ-JOHN PORTER.

Judge Holt Makes an Explanation of His Connection With the Trial.

Some Misapprehensions of Gen. Slocum on the Subject Set Right.

The following communication from Hon-Joseph Holt, who was the judge advocate of the Fitz-John Porter court-martial, explains itself:

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25, 1584—To THE EDITOR OF THE NATIONAL REPUBLICAN—Sir: Being withdrawn from public life, I am not a constant or careful reader of the debates in congress, and hence the speech of Gen. Slocum, delivered in the house of representatives on the nineteenth of January, in advocacy of the bill for the relief of Gen. Fitzvocacy of the bill for the relief of Gen. Fitz-John Porter, escaped my notice. Having read it within a few days, at the suggestion of a friend, I find certain passages which can scarcely fail to make an erroneous impression to my prajudice, and upon which, therefore, it would seem to be proper, if not incumbent upon me, to submit a few observations. Gen. Slocum said: "Let mo remind the gentleman that Judge Holt, who was ap-pointed the prosecuting attorney in this case.

gentleman that Judge Holt, who was appointed the prosecuting attorney in this case, had never been in military life until he was made judge advocate to prosecute this very man." This is a mistake. I had been "in military life"—that is, had held the office of judge advocate of the army—for approaching three months before I was detailed or "appointed" as a judge advocate for the trial of Gen. Porter. My commission as judge advocate of the army, which conferred the office upon me without limitation and charged me with all its duties then existing or thereafter to arise, bore date second isting or thereafter to arise, bore date second September, 1862, while the order convening the court-martial for the trial of Gon. Porter, and which detailed me as the judge advocate, was not issued until the twenty-fifth of No-vember thereafter. While Gen. Slocum evidently intended censure by these words, the ground of it is by no means clear. If the ground of it is by no means clear. If his object was to complain of my having been detailed to try the case of Gen. Porter alone, the complaint must have been prompted by a misapprehension. The court prompted by a misapprehension. The court martial was organized and convened, as appears by the very terms of the order, for the trial of Gen. Porter only, and hence the members of the court, including the judge advocate, were detailed in accordance with the order for that trial only. This was strictly formal and in obedience to the law and usage on the subject. There was nothing exceptional or irregular in my being thus detailed while holding the office of judge advocate of the army. I was detailed in the same manner for the trial of the assassins of President Lincoln, and these are not the only cases in Lincoln, and these are not the only cases in which I performed similar duties under the law and the orders of my superior officers. Gen. Slocum further said: "If the theory is, would like to know why Judge Holt was appointed to try this one case, and why he got appointed to try this one case, and why he got on the retired list of the army as a general for trying the case, and stays there to this day as a general." This is cortainly extraordinary language. It seems to proceed upon the language. It seems to proceed upon the assumption that the retirement of a military officer is a boon or reward which the Presi-dent, in his discretion and at his will, may heatow, for services worthy, in his judgment, of such recognition. Nothing could be more at variance with the view which has heretofore prevailed. The whole subject of the retirement of military officers is conthe retirement of military officers is controlled by positive law, and the President, in issuing an order of retirement, is simply the agent and organ of that law, and governed in his action by its conditions and limitations. In the class of cases now under consideration no question is raised as to special services performed or not performed, but the inquiry is whether the party has arrived at the age required by the statute. If, however, my retirement was, as insisted, a recompense for the service referred to, Gen. Slocum will admit that it was slow in reaching its destination, since nearly twelve years and where admit that it was slow in reaching its desti-nation, since nearly twelve years and weven months of unceasing and most responsible official labor on my part elapsed after the conclusion of the trial before the retirement took place, and whon it did occur, the order for it was issued by Gen. Grant, then President of the United States. Is Gen. Slocum to be understood as holding that this retirement was conforred upon me as a reward for the prosecution of Gen. Porter by Gen. Grant, now onemly supporting his by Gen. Grant, now openly supporting his pending application for restoration to the army? It seems scarcely credible, and yet this is the effect necessarily of the words "He got on the retired list of the army for trying the case." The fact is that the order retiring me took no account of special or other services rendered, but rested solely on the legal basis that I had reached and passed the age fixed by law for the pur-pose, and the order had no more connection with the trial of Gen. Forter than it had with the deluge. It may be added generally that military officers are not retired as a personal favor to them, and the act, instead of being favor to them, and the act, instead of being welcomed, is by many of them greatly depliced. They are presumed to be retired wholly in the interests of the service to which they belong and in maintenance of a policy established by law for the purpose of giving to that service its greatest possible efficiency. No small amount of ill-considered criticism has been expended upon my bearing and action in connection with the trial of Gen. Portor, How I performed my duty on that

Porter. How I performed my duty on that occasion—a duty neither solicited nor desired, but which was imposed upon me by law and the order of my superior officer—will fully appear by the words of the only witness to whom I shall refer—Gen. Porter himself. In the elaborate argument in his defense, which was signed by him and read with emphasis and fervor to the court by his counsel, and which will be found in the printed record of the trial, he said, in speaking of myself: "Your eminent official law adviser myself: "Your eminent official law adviser who has conducted the prosecution calmly and fairly, so far as on him depended, but with the vigilance and energy which his duty demanded, himself in the recent past, where momentous events hinged on the great sway which in his high post he bore, has trusted me, and has felt that his trust was in no wise hetrawed." To annexiste which the force betrayed." To appreciate aright the force of this frank and honorable testimony, it must be borne in mind that Gen. Porter was present during the whole of the trial, and personally observant of what was said and personally coservant of what was said and done by me, so that his statement, as quoted, is a declaration, not merely of an opinion, but of a fact as well, which was within his complete personal knowledge. The lovers of truth and justice will hardly hesitate to accept this most trustworthy evidence as a sufficient reply to the heedless cavils of those who were not present at the trial who are who were not present at the trial, who are uninformed as to its incidents, and who, to this day, remain profoundly ignorant of the spirit in which its proceedings were con-

My subsequent review of the record of the any subsequent review of the record of the trial was made in the discharge of a duty enjoined by law on the office of judge advocate of the army, which I held, and the obligation of this duty was supplemented by a written requirement of the review from me by President Liucoln himself. Free Ships.

The shipping committee yester day took up the bill to admit foreign built ships to American registry free of duty, and voted [3 to 6] to report it adversely. Those voting in favor of the bill were Messrs, Slocum, Throckmorton, and Denster, and those in the negative, Messrs, Dingley, Long, Hunt, George, O'Neill, and Lore. Mr. Dibble did notvote, and Mr. Findlay was absent. It was agreed that Mr. Dingley should prepare a report embodying the views of the majority, and Mr. Slocum one embodying the views of the minority, and that the report should go to the calendar for consideration by the house.

Ways and Means.

Representative Boutelle, of Maine; C. F. A. Johnson, of Aroostook county, Maine, and O. A. Taft, of Rhode Island, appeared before the ways and means committee yesterday in behalf of the starch producing industries of the country. They contended that the proposed reduction of duty and the placing of A CERTIFICATE OF CHARACTER various products of postso starch on the free list would prove destructive to the industry, and would deprive the farmers of one of the most important home markets for their potatoes.

A COCKING MAIN.

Washington Pitted Against Virginia in Nine Fights and Wins.

One hundred men, representing all stages of society and professions, drove out to Silver Hill postoffice yesterday. For a week past suggestive rumors of an approaching chicken fight were circulated, and although but about a dozen men were acquainted with the time and place, the above number left the city and drove to Silver Hill. The fights were announced to take place at 11 o'clock, and by that time the little village was filled with city men inquiring where the contest was to take place. A courier from the main lines came into the village shortly afterward and after much talk agreed to conduct the crowd to the pit upon the payment of "a half dollar, an' yer betcher life yor can't git there without me." Most of the crowd put up and after walking a half mile east of Silver Hill came to the pit. It was in an open field near a barn owned by a man named Andrews. Around it were gathered a score of choice spirits who welcomed the crowd with hearty cheers. About four yards to the east of the pit an improvised har was set up and whisky sold briskly at a quarter a drink, while beer at a dime a glass was partaken of freely.

"Bunk" Ridgely, the referee, called time at 11:40, and the crowd settled down to watch the contests. The fights were for $20 a side and $100 on the main. Virginia was pitted against Washington, and each side had its admirers and backers, although the latter were in the majority. Thirteen birds were shown, and nine battles were arranged. The Washington birds were handled by Johnny Evans, and "Wat" Killery did the honors for Virginia.

The Washington bird was a favorite at 20 to 10, with few backers, in the first fight. The chickens in this fight were top weights, the Virginia bird weighing three ounces more than the Washington bird. In the first fly off the Washington dark red killed the light

A dark red for Washington next sprang into the pit and crowed lustily in the second fight. A red pyle for Virginia soon followed, and after considerable pecking and scratching was killed by his opponent.

A handsome gray showed up for Washington in the third fight, and a red pyle crowed for Virginia. This was a well-contested fight and both birds were injured. The Virginia bird proved to be the best, however, and soon sent his gaff through his antagonist's brain. The fourth fight was between a red for Washington and a saddle-back for Virginia. The fight was a short one, but was characterized by sharp fighting, ending in the death of the Virginia bird.

The fifth fight was a short one, and was between a red for Virginia and black spot for Washington. The latter bird, on the second leap, killed the red with a well-directed blow.

A brown showed up for Washington and a red pyle sprang into the pit for Virginia in the next contest. This was the best contested fight of the main and some sharp, and wrets. fight of the main, and some sharp and pretty fighting was witnessed. Washington, how-ever, proved the best bird, and killed his bird

Mr. Springer's Proposition.

Representative Springer, of Illinois, yesterday introduced for reference in the house, a proposed constitutional amendment, making presidential term six years, and ing the president ineligible to re-election for the next succeeding term. It provides for a direct vote for president in each state, and abolishes the electoral college. Each state shall have a number of votes equal to the number of its representatives and senators in congress, to be given to each candidate in proportion to the total vote cast for each. The term of representatives in congress is fixed at three years, and congress shall meet each year on the first Wednesday in January the first session to convene in the January succeeding the November election.

The British Minister Writes to the Effect That Mr. Hewitt Did Not Apologize-He Merely Explained.

In compliance with requests made both by Representative Hewitt, of New York, and Representative Belmont, the house committee on foreign affairs yesterday made public the letter addressed to the former by the British minister, which was submitted to the com-minister, which was submitted to the committee last Thursday. It is as follows:

BRITISH LEGATION, Jan. 14, 1858.—Dear Mr. Heast: In reply to your note of yesterday, asking me whether, in the course of a social visit which you wore kind enough to pay me some days ago, you said or did anything which could be construed as an apology for your action in moving in the resolution in O'Domnell's case, i have only to say that I did not regard what you said to me in the light of an apology for the resolution, but as an explanation of the peculiar circumstances which prompted it on your part in the interest of the friendly relations which exist between the two countries. This impression was, moreover, are ughtened by your allusion to the moderate language—in your opinion—of the resolution, which you gave as a reason why you thought that the request for deary in the execution of the sentence should be granted, and by your saying that other resolution less considerate in form had been proposed to you, and as you were informed would have been offered if you had not framed one as assistanctory to both sides of the house as not to meet with a number objection, which would have defeated it.

I may add that I could not presume that there was any evidence from what you said of any want of sincerity on your part in moving the resolution in question. Believe me, yours, very truly.
